Spectacular sunrises and sunsets photographed through ancient snow gums with mountain views, rewarding photographers of all levels and abilities with unforgettable memories and images. Capture the sights and scenes of fresh alpine air on your camera as we walk through gently undulating slopes.

Where to meet

Meet at the National Park Visitor Information Centre in Jindabyne at 5am for Sunrise Tours and at 5.30pm for Sunset Tours. Depending on the weather and the interests of the group, Mike will choose the best destination to photograph the alpine landscape and the rising or setting sun.

What to bring:

- Day pack
- Camera with fully charged 1-2 batteries
- Memory card
- 1 litre of water
- high energy snacks (such as some chocolate or mixed nuts)

What to wear:

Wearing layers is a good idea, especially light weight/quick dry gear that packs small and can be put on/off easily if the weather changes during the day (no cotton clothes).

- Light weight thermals under shorts or long pants
- Fleece jacket for extra warmth
- Gore-Tex or (similar) waterproof jacket
- Warm thermal socks
- Gore-Tex (or similar) waterproof hiking shoes
- Beanie
- Gloves

Level of fitness required

A low to medium level of fitness is required to enjoy this photographic workshop and tour through the alpine environment. You should feel comfortable to be walking for about three hours. There will be plenty of time to stop, rest and photograph the alpine landscape. Mike will consider the fitness of the group when deciding on the best destination for the day.
